Several of the firemen were affected a hadly by the smoke that they had to quit. When the smoke clouds were rolling out of the third floor windows the thickest a black dege of the arth of the country of t thing new for him to carry a cat down, for he had hardly taken two steps when he shock himself violently and made a pass with one hand. Pussy came sailing through the air, to the consternation of the women folk, who were getting all ready to greet the brave fireman as a hero. The cat landed on all fours in the street. It was visible after that only as a streak as it sped through the saloon opposite and out the back dotr. The claw marks on the back of the rescuer's neck will be there for several

the rescuer's neck will be there for several days

The fire practically gutted the building in which it started and spread to 450, which is Thomas Connery's hotel. The hotel is only three stories high, and all the guests were out. The fire in this building was confined to the third floor.

Connery's family occupied the top floor of 452. After the alarm had been turned in he found his wife overcome near one of the front windows of their apartment. He carried her downstairs, but when he attempted to go back immediately afterward he found his way blocked by the fames. Connery had about $1,500 in bills and coin in a bureau upstairs, but he simply had to stand in the street and watch the fames creep toward it. He was we wen able to console himself with the thought that the bureau was insured. As soon as their Croker got on the scene Connery upped him off as to what was in the bureau. The chief, as soon as he thought it was safe, sent one of his men through the bedroom window into the smoke cloud. He returned to the window with an old wallet and two wit fiannel bags, about the size of shot tags. Each was tied securely with string. The wallet and the bags were scorched a little and the bureau was partly burned. Connery was a shappy as a lark.

The loss of the Labocosco Paper Company was about $4,000, and the damage to the Connery hotel was $1,000.

CITY SCHOOL FOR DEAF MUTES.

The Board of Education Takes Preliminary Steps to Establish One.

resterday took preliminary steps toward is to be a part of the public school system. City Superintendent Maxwell says there are several hundred deaf mute children private institution.

The committee on elementary schools presented a report suggesting that such a school be established as soon as the building at 225 East Twenty-third street, now occupied by the Stuyvesent High School, can be equipped. The report contained an explanation from the board of superintendents that a day school for deaf mutes is entirely practicable. After n voice training the pupils may take up the regular course, such as is taught in Boston. Lip reading and oral speech should be taught exclusively; signs and the manual alphabet should form no part whatever of the course of instruction. A careful study of class instruction in different institutions has shown that pupils hught exclusively by the lip method make netter progress, have better trained minds and have greater confidence in themselves than have those taught in whole or in part by the manual methods. It is easier to communicate by the hands, signs and facial expression than by the lips.

The superintendents recommended that industrial work should form a prominent feature of the course of instruction. The daf mutes should be taught to be useful and self-supporting citizens. The class register should not exceed ten pupils and money under the part of tenciners, and in order to induce teachers of marked billity to accept places in the school for def mutes it will be necessary to offer eslaries somewhat higher than those found in the regular schedules.

Provision for the payment of farce for marked and the regular schedules.

Provision for the payment of farce for pipils attending the school should be made; also for supplying a cup of milks of coca at the noon hour, as nearly all of the children will come to the school from some distance.

of the children will come to the school from some distance.

It was recommended that a principal should be selected immediately in order to visit other institutions for dear mutes before completing plans.

The board adopted the report, and efforts will be made to get the school for deaf mutes started inside of a year.

he has received many inquiries by phone, letter and wire, many of them from very remote points in the North.

There are estimated to be more than e0,000 Americans, native and naturalized, scattered over the four northwest provinces of Canada, many of them in the far Feace River and Athabases country, who would not hear of this law in the ordinary course for years. Mr. Jones says there is no fund for advertising the terms of the law. There is no Consul in the Northwest except at Calgary, 2,000 miles away from the remotest points where Americans dwell.

Leading Americans in Winnipeg say they propose to see the law tested. The moretary of the American Association in Winnipeg could not get a certificate because he was a naturalized American formerly from Canada and has since exercised citizenship n Canada.

Justice Platzek yesterday granted her permission to change her name.

In her petition Miss Scott said that her father was Thomas Scott, but that since she was a little girl she had been known by the name of McMahon, because her mother, Mary A. Scott, got a divorce and Justice Giegerich authorised the mother to resume her maiden name of McMahon.

Miss Scott is 19 years old and was graduated from a public school as Josephine McMahon. She is now a pupil in the Normal College and has been informed that it would not be proper to have her diploma made out in any other than her legal name. Her father, she save, disappeared many years ago. Miss McMahon now lives at 22 East 114th street.

A. T. POST DISPUTES MARRIAGE

SAYS MRS. POST IS STILL LE-GALLY MRS. KAYE,

Post, the banker, for a separation, alleging that he beat her, is not his legal wife yesterday by his lawyer, Henry C. Eldert, in opposing an application for alimony made to Justice Dayton by Mrs. Post. Mr. Eldert said:

"As to alimony, the court should not grant' the application unless it appears that the wife has a fair chance of winning her suit. She should be able to show, at least, that she is legally married. We admit that there was a marriage ceremony, but deny that there was a valid marriage.

"In 1871 the plaintiff married John S. Kaye in New Orleans. Several years later Kaye brought a suit for divorce in Texas for abandonment, and in 1878 the divorce was granted, but process had never been served upon her. In 1895, in this city, she married Daniel Holliday, but soon sued him for separation on the ground of cruel and inhuman treatment. Holliday et up the answer that she had never been livorced from Kaye, and in March, 1808, divorced from Kaye, and in March, 1898, Supreme Court Justice Russell dismissed her complaint and granted Holliday's prayer for an annulment. The Justice declared that the whole Texas proceedings were null and void."

In answer Mr. Ennis, for Mrs. Post, said there were three children born as a result of the marriage with Kaye, and for reasons not set forth in the pleadings Mrs. Kaye refused to continue to live with her husband. In 1878 he obtained a divorce for abandonment after she had received personal service in accordance with all the rules then in force in the State of Texas. She put her children in a convent in Galveston and came north, where she met Holliday and subsequently become his wife.

came north, where she met Holliday and subsequently became his wife.

"He was a confirmed drunkard," said Judge Enuis, "and she sued for a separation. Justice Russell's decision dismissing her complaint and regarding the Texas decree as void was is accordance with the then ruling of the Supreme Court of New York, but the United States Supreme Court has since held that decrees such as that obtained by Mr. Kaye are valid and therefore Mrs. Post's present marriage to Poet is legal."

NEGROES ATTACK ROOSEVELT.

New England African Methodists Resent His Action in Brownsville Affair.

Sceron, July 8 -President Roosevelt was consured for his attitude toward the negro race in the report of the committee "The State of the Country," which was adopted by the New England African M. E. Conference to-day.

The report, which was presented by the Rev. R. C. Ranson, resents the action of the President in the Brownsville incident and his alleged characterization of the negro as a race of criminals. It says:

We owe it to our good name and the large place, numerically at least, we occupy in this nation to resent these unjust imputations and slanders in the most emphatic and effec-and slanders in the most emphatic and effective manner.

The discharge without honor of a battalion of the Twenty-fifth United States Infantry by President Roosevelt has done more to arouse our just resentment and unite all elements of our people than the act of any President since emancipation.

The injustice done these men can neither be laughed nor hissed from public view. Ridicule and persecution of Senator Foraker for swelfing to establish the truth in this matter will neither silence criticism nor discourage further investigation.

The action of the President will become a political issue in the next national election

RUNYAN INDICTED. He Sticks to It That the Carter Woman Get the Missing $25,000.

The police did not succeed yesterday in getting trace of the $25,000 which is missing of the $98,000 Chester B. Runyan stole from the Windsor Trust Company. Detective Flood of the District Attorney's office went to the Liberty Storage and Warehouse Company and the Garfield Trust Company, where Laura Carter, who betrayed Runyan, had safety vaults, but he found nothing. The one at the Garfield Trust Company was empty, and the one at the Liberty Storage Company had a life insurance policy for $500 made out to Laura Ison, one of Laura's many names. The officials of the trust companies say that two days before Laura Carter turned Runyan over to the police she visited each of the vaults. Runyan was indicted yesterday for grand larceny in the first degree. He is accused of stealing $54,000 from the Windsor Trust Company on June 29, according to the indictment. That is the sum Runyan had in his possession when he was arrested. The story has been that he put the money in a suit case and walked out last Saturday. From what the District Attorney's office has been able to learn the trust company officials are not sure when he took the money. The auditor has not finished his inspection of the books and it is not known exactiv how much he stole.

Runyan will be arraigned this morning before Judge O'Sullivan in General Sessions. It is not expected that the Carter woman, was discharged yesterday afternoon by Magistrate Aernochan. After being released she went to Police Headquarters and looked over the rogues' gallery, thinking that she might find in the collection somebody who was a male friend of the Carter woman. The police stick to the theory that Laura Carter handed the missing $25,000 over to some man to take care of it for her.

Runyan says that Laura Carter promised to hide him for $5,000. This was before the robbery. He gave her that, and when she had threatened to expose him he gave her $10,000 more in two instalments. Then, he says, she stole $10,000. The Duncan woman said that Runyan sat around the heuse all day while Laura Carter went out as she pleased.

CALLS ON PRESIDENT AT 4 A. M. Apparently Demented Man Kept Away by Secret Service Men and Leeb.

OYSTER BAY, July 8 .- The vigilance of the Secret Service guard saved President Roceevelt from an univited guest who arrived at Sagamore Hill at 4 o'clock this morning in an automobile. The man was stopped by the guard a short distance inside of the entrance to the President's grounds and before he was in sight of the nouse. He said that he wished to call the grounds and before he was in sight of the house. He said that he wished to call the President's attention to a new kind of submarine. He offered no resistance when the Secret Service men told him that he must leave the grounds at once. The stranger drove back to Oyster Bay and had an early breakfast at the Octagon Hotel. He refused to register at the hotel

Leaving the hotel, the man went to the executive offices, where he waited two hours for Secretary Loeb. He told the secretary that he had been troubled by the reports of a possible war between the United States and Japan and had decided that it was his duty to tell the President about an improvement in submarine boats which he had perfected. Secretary Loeb talked for some time with the man and came to the conclusion that he was demented. The secretary finally persuaded the man to leave town without making another attempt to see the President. Mr. Loeb refused to tell who the stranger was but said that he belonged to a prominent New Jersey family and would be taken care of when he returned home.

"The visitor was a tall, broad shouldared man of about 35," said the secretary. "He gave evidence of breeding and education. It was easy to see that he was not quite right, and he was such a powerful fellow that I took good care not to excite him. I used all the diplomacy at my command and persuaded him to leave town quietly. Of course if he had insisted upon seeing the President's house at the early morning hour by a Lory recently printed to the effect that a man had driven unmolested through the grounds after dark.

All steamers are to be inspected thor-

All steamers are to be inspected thoroughly and watched carefully to see that there is no overcrowding and that they are properly equipped with life preservers, life raits, hose and other safety appliances. Fitty additional inspectors have been appointed as the result of this conference and these men are to watch all excursion steamers. They will be assigned by Deputy Surveyors Bishop and Clays.

These inspectors will see that there is no overcrowding. If they find that there is any violation of the law they are empowered to arrest the officer in charge, revoke the license of the pilot and practically put the vessel out of commission until the case has been settled in the courts. If fifty men are not enough for this work others will be assigned. They are in charge of Deputy Surveyor Matthew Coneys.

Heretofore on holidays and Sundays fifteen or twenty of the customs inspectors who are regularly engaged in the examination of baggage had been detailed to help out the force of steamboat inspectors. This number was not enough to make the inspection efficient. The new men will count the passengers on excursion boats; including gasolene launohes, not only on holidays but on week days, and will not have work in examining baggage except on cold rainy days when the danger of overcrowding is small.

LIVE TOPICS ABOUT TOWN

"I don't know whether the Fairbanks beem has had anything to do with it or not." said a whitecosted man behind a long stretch of mahogany in a downtown barroom, "but there is a great call for buttermilk these days. Fact is that we keep a dozen cans of the stuff at one end of the dozen cans of the stuff at one end of the bar and one man is occupied in doling it out. Up to this year one little bucket of buttermilk was all we needed for a day, and even then it wasn't half used up. We just kept it for the accommodation of waterwagonites or folks with finnicky stomachs. But now there is an enormous call for it. Not only here, for I've made inquiries and found the same conditions exist all over town. Not only in bars but in eating places there is a greatly increased call for buttermilk."

"That is not a bad idea, as it insures permanent tenants, which always give better character to a building than the kind who are frequently on the move."

Miss Ivy L. Foale, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. E. Foale of 200 DeKalb avenue, Brooklyn, and Eugene A. Day, also a resident of Brooklyn, were married on August 15, 1908, by the Rev. James J. Moffatt, a 15, 1906, by the Rev. James J. Moffatt, a Methodist minister at Glen Cove, L. I., but the announcement of the marriage did not appear until last Sunday.

Miss Foale, who was only 18 years old, wedded without the knowledge of her parents, and a couple of weeks after the ceremony accompanied them to Europe on an extended trip. It was not until a few days ago that the secret was disclosed.

Mr. and Mrs. Day are spending their belated honeymoon with the bride's parents.

New Helland-America Boat to Be a Big One The agents of the Holland-America Lind of steamships got word yesterday that the new twin screw steamer being built by Harland & Wolff will have a registered tonnage of 24,170 and will be the largest vessel coming here next to the Lusitania and Mauritania of the Cunard Line.
